a $500
Flight Centre gift card*

Jointly conducted by the UNSW Law School and ACICA, this research is the first empirical study that focuses on patterns of use in international commercial arbitration in the context of Australian trade and commerce. This research aims to:

- Explore recent trends and preferences
- Examine the attitudes of the legal profession, corporate users and experts involved with international commercial arbitration over the course of the last five years (2012-2016)
- Identify the key features influencing users' choices
- Provide an insight into how the use of international commercial arbitration has developed over recent years in the context of Australian trade and commerce

INVITATION TO PARTICIPATE

- Participation in this survey is invited from those who have experienced international commercial arbitration (whether from a transactional or disputes perspective) in the context of Australian trade and commerce in the last five years (2012-2016)
- The survey should take about 30 minutes to complete

Any information obtained in connection with this research that can identify participants will remain strictly confidential.

Your information will contribute to a greater understanding of the use of international commercial arbitration in Australia and the region and inform collective promotional and educational efforts in this area.
